

TIM WALSH
CEO & Founder

Tim founded Vingo because he believes that if people have easy and affordable access to an immersive, inclusive and social exercise experience, it will improve their health.

Over the last two decades, he has created companies that support people. From expanding access to electronic payments for those without bank accounts to creating a more inclusive and affordable fitness experience with Vingo, he is passionate about improving people's experiences.

Tim has demonstrated the ability to build teams of passionate, loyal employees that align themselves with a company's mission. Previously, he founded Ready Credit Corporation (RCC) and served as the President and CEO from 2005 to 2019 before transitioning into his current role as its Executive Chairman. RCC developed and patented a means of instantly issuing a prepaid debit card from a self-service kiosk. RCC now has over 1,000 kiosks deployed in airports and sports venues throughout North America and has every major airline in the US under contract for cashless operations. RCC sells more than 1 million cards annually to consumers.

Before he established RCC, Tim held various leadership roles in companies serving the aviation industry, online healthcare, and K-12 education. In his downtime, he enjoys riding his bike, boating, traveling, and spending as much time as possible with his family.
